Domino's, the local pizza delivery expert, is set to create around 50-70 full and part-time jobs when it opens new stores in the towns of Tewkesbury and Gloucester. The stores will be located on the High Street and Whittle Square respectively and are both due to open towards the end of next month [September]. Domino's Pizza is recruiting within the community for trainee managers, trainee pizza makers, customer service representatives and delivery experts.

Michaela Roberts, marketing manager for the new stores, said: "We are so excited about opening two new stores in the towns of Tewkesbury and Gloucester. This will be our second store in Gloucester so we are certainly keeping busy. We are looking forward to employing people who live in the communities that we'll be serving. First and foremost, we'll be looking for people who can deliver great customer service and demonstrate strong teamwork skills, as well as boundless enthusiasm. It's also vital to be able to maintain a sense of fun while working under pressure"

Domino's Pizza believes in opportunities for all. The company is an Age Positive Employer Champion, which means that it has been recognised for its commitment to welcoming applicants of all ages. Domino's will be recruiting on the basis of ability and, as many team members go on to management positions in under two years, this recruitment drive is a fantastic opportunity for jobseekers in Tewkesbury in Gloucester.

At induction, as well as throughout their career, Domino's offers its employees full training, ranging from dough management and food hygiene for pizza makers through to road safety for pizza delivery experts. Domino's always recruits from the surrounding area and, with an additional focus on developing strong community links, aims to deliver more than just great tasting pizza. In particular, Domino's supports Special Olympics Great Britain (SOGB) on both a national and local level.
